Farewell Forums

pumacloudburst74

Goodbye to the forums, which will always be remembered. I've moved to the News Feed but will pop by these last few days. Though I cannot garauntee I will be around as my computer hates the WiFi and won't ever connect. (I am using an Android currently).

I would say thanks to everyone about how great you all are, even though I barely know most of you, but I would never finish this post and I would feel guilty to forget one of you. So I am just goingnto adress you all as a whole.

I'd like to say:
You are all amazing and should keep being the fantastic people you are. Also, even when times are tough, be yourself. You are the best way you can change what is happening. Without yourself you wouldn't be here. To be yourself is the best gift you can give to the world, even when it is hard.
Also keep making the great choices you all make even without realizing it. Choices are literally the only way to go anywhere in life.

This is pretty much what I wanted to say... I think.

Be yourself and remember that you can change the future one step at a time.

See ya around.
